

WHERE to BEGIN

On Tuesday, September 8, start the day by visiting the class webpage The Daily Platypus (DailyPlatypus.org). The first post will always tell you about that day's activities and events. It'll be posted by 7 a.m..

At 8:30 a.m. be prepared to log-in to Google Classroom using your District e-mail and password (just as you did last spring). Make sure you're enrolled in our "classroom" by checking your District 6 e-mail and accepting the invitation to "20-21 Room 15 Platypus Kids."

At 9:30 a.m. that morning we'll have our first Zoom meeting. I will post the invite on Google Classroom and I'll also send it to parents so they're aware.

Between now and the first day, you might want to visit The Daily Platypus and explore some of the pages and posts. You might also try logging into Google Classroom to review how to do it. That way you won't be stressed that first morning. Also, I encourage you to email me to say hello or tell me about your summer.

That's it! Everything else will be explained once we're online together. Worried? Nervous? Don't be. Ask any of my former students and they'll tell you my classroom—whether online or in person—is fun, safe, and comfortable. When things go wrong, I'll help you out. When you make a mistake, I'll help you try again. So relax. It's gonna be great!
